Part

Certification

Under penalties of perjury, I certify that:

- The number shown on this form is my correct taxpayer identification number (or I am waiting for a number to be issued to me), and I am not subject to backup withholding because: (a) I am exempt from backup withholding, or (b) I have not been notified by the IRS that I am subject to backup withholding as a result of a failure to report all interest or dividends, or (c) the IRS has notified me that I am no longer subject to backup withholding.

Certification instructions.—You must cross out item 2 above if you have been notified by the IRS that you are currently subject to backup withholding because of underreporting interest or dividends on your tax return. For real estate transactions, item 2 does not apply. For the acquisition or abandonment of secured property, cancellation of debt, contributions to an individual retirement arrangement, or generally payments other than interest and dividends, you are not required to sign the Certification, but you must provide your TIN. See Part III instructions on page 2.)

Purpose of Form.—A person who is required to file an information return with the IRS must get your correct TIN to report to you. real estate transactions, mortgage interest you paid, acquisition or abandonment of secured property, cancellation of debt, or other payments made to an IRA. Use this form to give your correct TIN to the person requesting your TIN (the person requesting your TIN is not applicable). (1) to certify the TIN is correct (or you are waiting for a number to be issued), (2) to certify you are subject to backup withholding, or (3) to certify you are exempt from backup withholding. If you are an exempt payee, your correct TIN and making this certification will prevent payments from being subject to backup withholding.

Note: If the requester gives you a form other than this one to request your TIN, you must use the requester's form if it is substantially similar to this Form W-9.

What is backup withholding?—Persons making payments to you must withhold and pay to the IRS 31% of such payments under certain conditions. This is called "backup withholding." Payments that could be subject to backup withholding include interest, dividends, broker and barter exchange transactions, rents, royalties, nonemployee pay, and certain payments from fishing boat operators. Real estate transactions are not subject to backup withholding.

If you give the requester your correct TIN, make the proper certifications, and report all your taxable interest and dividends on your tax return, your payments will not be subject to backup withholding. Payments you receive will be subject to backup withholding if:

- You do not furnish your TIN to the requester, or
- The IRS tells the requester that you furnished an incorrect TIN, or
- The IRS tells you that you are subject to backup withholding because you did not report all your interest and dividends on your tax return (for reportable interest and dividends only), or
- You do not certify to the requester that you are not subject to backup withholding under 3 above (for reportable interest and dividend accounts open after 1983 only), or

B. You do not certify your TIN. See Part III instructions for exceptions.

Certain payees and payments are exempt from backup withholding. See the Part III instructions and the separate instructions for the Requester of Form W-9.

How To Get a TIN.—If you do not have a TIN, apply for one immediately. To get Form SS-8, Application for a Social Security Number Card (for individuals), from your local office of the Social Security Administration, or Form SS-4, Application for Employer Identification Number (for businesses and all other entities), from your local IRS office.

If you do not have a TIN, write "Not applicable" in the space for the TIN in Part I and date the form, and give it to the requester. Generally, you will then have 60 days to get a TIN and give it to the requester. If the requester does not receive your TIN within 60 days, backup withholding, if applicable, will begin and continue until you furnish your TIN.
